Program Features

Courses are offered year-round, either in four-month offerings, or over the entire fiscal year based on the course.

Courses are self-paced within these periods, allowing participants to complete them on their own time.

Most courses are open to both government officials and members of the general public.

There is no cost for courses for registered government officials. Successful participants receive an official IMF certificate and course completion will be noted on their IMF transcript.

There is no limit on how many officials from an agency can register for a course.

Courses can be found on the IMF’s Digital Training Catalog.
Microlearning
Microlearning – Learn on the Go!

- Free, bite-size, on-demand, searchable microlearning videos on key IMF areas of expertise (debt sustainability, financial sector policies, macroeconomic statistics, etc.)
- Over 11,000 subscribers and over 1,000,000 individual views since its launch in April 2020
- www.IMF.org/MicroLearning

NEW! Interactive Videos Test Your Knowledge

- Short, interactive microlearning videos on climate change
- Built-in knowledge checks and engaging interface
- www.IMF.org/InteractiveLearning
Blended Learning
Blended Learning

Combinations of face-to-face with online learning experience

- Well-structured combinations of independent, self-paced ("asynchronous") learning and live, instructor-led ("synchronous") sessions
- Thoughtful learner engagement strategies
- Improved learning infrastructure to support seamless experience

Blended TA

Individual learning => institutional capacity

- Individual development of skills and competencies for multi-country cohorts of government officials is followed by country-specific TA engagements
- Higher efficiency and impact of TA delivery
- Particularly effective for specialized topics and tool-based courses
